ABOUT THE SDP

Today, a pharmaceutical scientist is well versed with the fact that the overall action of a drug molecule is not merely dependent on its inherent therapeutic activity, rather on the efficiency of its delivery at the site of action in a desired rate. The delivery system should deliver the drug at a rate dictated by the needs of the body over the period of treatment.

Future involves that the pharma industries, R & D's and academicians should focus on newer concepts and methodologies of drug delivery for existing drug moieties. This can be done by striving hard for developing Novel Drug Delivery Systems, which would reach the common man.

Research related to the development of NDDS is highly preferred field of the pharmaceutical world. It has crossed the infancy period and is now scaling new peaks. This SDP will give academicians a chance to supplement the mission by extending their in depth knowledge and experience in the concerned field to the industry as well as to the research scholars. In the future, with the involvement of pharma industries and R & D's the novel drug delivery system will definitely achieve new targets with the latest concepts and methodologies of drug delivery systems.
