About Us:

STES was established in August 1993 under the dynamic leadership of Prof. M. N. Navale. It provides quality education at primary, secondary and tertiary levels in the field of Management, Engineering, Computer Application, Pharmacy, Architecture, Hospitality, Dentistry etc. All the institutes of STES are recognized by the concerned statutory authorities and meticulously fulfill their required norms and standards. Sinhgad Institute of Business Administration and Computer Application (SIBACA), Kusgaon (Bk), Lonavala is one of the 117 institutes under the umbrella of STE Society. SIBACA is one of the Twelve group institutes in the lap of Sahyadri hills at Lonavala, the famous hill station of Maharashtra at the height of about six hundred twenty two meters above sea level. Its picturesque location and pleasant climate makes it a perfect learning center.

About the Seminar:

In production and development, open source as a development model promotes a universal access via a free license to a product's design or blueprint, and universal redistribution of that design or blueprint, including subsequent improvements to it by anyone. Open source gained hold with the rise of the Internet, and the attendant need for massive retooling of the computing source code. Opening the source code enabled a self-enhancing diversity of production models, communication paths, and interactive communities. The open-source software movement arose to clarify the environment that the new copyright, licensing, domain, and consumer issues created.

Many large formal institutions have sprung up to support the development of the open source movement, including the Apache Software Foundation, which supports projects such as the open source framework behind big data Apache Hadoop and an open-source HTTP server Apache HTTP.

A main role of open-source software development is peer production by collaboration, with the end-product, source code, "blueprints", and documentation available at no cost to the public. The open source movement in software began as a response to the limitations of closed proprietary code, and it is now spreading across different fields. The seminar is mainly focused on the role and future of Open Source Technologies in IT.
